OCEAN RACE BEGUN.
Steamships Paris and Campana Start on Their Eastern Trip.

Crowds at the Piers Cheer the Floating Palaces.

The Paris Starts Seventeen Minutes Ahead of Her New Rival.

The queen of ocean yfers, the American steamship Paris, backed out from her slip in the North River at 9.15 this morning under circumstances that must have caused her owners, the commandant and subordinate officers deep concern.

At the morning the pier-house at the foot of Barrow street presented a scene of more than usual activity on occasions of the departure of vessels. Buooyed officers hurried hither and thither through pines of freight and throngs of passengers and waiting friends, but the purpose of it all was not apparent.

Every one seemed nervous excepting Capt. Hadden, who moved about the ship's deck with a parent, unobtrusive, but watchful air, as if he knew the voyage on which he was about to start would be fraught with excitement and the effort made by the new vessel to outstrip the old.

At the pier, the Paris was the first to start, and the Campana followed her. The Paris was the first to start, and the Campana followed her. The Paris was the first to start, and the Campana followed her.

WALL STREET EASIER.
Belief Is General that the Worst Is Now Over.

Market Opens Feverish, but Lively Trading Is Done.

Deacon White Says He Is Not Very Badly Hurt.

Although it is the general opinion in Wall street that the crisis in the stock market has been passed, the tone of the market at the opening this morning was nervous and excited, and the early trading showed a considerable fluctuation in the prices of the industrial stocks, particularly in Sugar and General Electric.

This state of things is likely to continue for several days, providing the theory of the speculative fraternity is correct, before any of the marked improvement which is expected will occur. Many are looking for a dull market.

The continued interest of the public in the present situation, however, was manifested again this morning by the crowds which thronged to the Stock Exchange and packed the galleries long before the gong sounded the opening of business.

The crowd in Sugar and General Electric was the largest on the floor, and when the business of the day began this corner furnished most of the interest for the spectators. The dealings, however, did not compare with those of yesterday's opening in volume, while the remainder of the list was almost entirely neglected.

The improved tone of speculation was immediately shown by the opening sales of the day, the prices ranging generally from 1-1/2 to 2-1/4 per cent. higher than last night's closing figures.

Very little was doing in National Cordage, which remained at about yesterday's price, and was evidently expected to be sold at a profit.

Immediately after the opening, however, some of the stocks began to move, and a general realizing, and were prepared to help prices down, were disappointed.

He declined to discuss his affairs at the moment, but he was evidently expected to be sold at a profit.

HARRIS'S END NEAR.
Arrangements for the Execution Are Practically Complete.

Members of the Family Gathering at Sing Sing.

The Wife-Poisoner Shows No Sign of Fear.

SING SING, N. Y., May 6.—The arrangements for the execution of Carlisle W. Harris, the convicted poisoner of his wife, were completed this morning.

Warden Durston has sent out the invitations to the witnesses who are to attend the legal killing of the young medical student, and practically nothing remains except the testing of the fatal machinery. This will probably be done late this afternoon or tomorrow, and in itself is a simple matter, and to the high degree of perfection to which the process of executing men at Sing Sing has been brought.

In response to a telegram from Warden Durston, State Electrician Davis late yesterday afternoon made a flying trip to Sing Sing and had a brief consultation with the Warden at the depot, after which he took a train for the North.

To an "Evening World" reporter this morning, Warden Durston said that Electrician Davis would be present at Harris's execution. But just when the execution will take place, the Warden would not say.

It seems likely, however, that the execution will take place Monday morning before 11 o'clock, and that in consequence of this the execution will be a quiet affair.

One of these guards knew Mr. Harris, and from him it is learned that the young medical student was on board the train when it was brought over with him and has made off with the diamonds.

NOW AN ELOPEMENT.
The Latest Theory in Connection with the Mysterious Jewelry.

Flamant Said to Have Fled with His Employer's Wife.

He Was Bookkeeper for a Wholesale Jewelry House in Havre.

Some new facts in connection with the supposed diamond robbery and the arrest of Jeanne Dolle, Eugene Leroux and Theodore Gaudinot on suspicion of having stolen the gems, which are said to be worth in the neighborhood of $100,000, and who are now in Ludlow street jail, were brought out today through the combined efforts of John Bloch, a commercial traveler for a Paris dry goods house, and Mr. and Mrs. Adler, proprietors of the Hotel Transatlantique, 375 West Street.

When the prisoners were arrested they claimed to have received the jewels from a man named Flamant, who, with his wife, was a guest at the Hotel Transatlantique.

From Mr. Bloch was obtained the information that Flamant and his wife were introduced to Leroux and Jeanne Dolle by Mr. Adler, and the latter, after some coaxing by an "Evening World" reporter, told the following story, giving it as his theory as to how the jewels came into this country:

"The man Flamant who came to my house from the steamer New York on April 13, was the housekeeper for a wealthy wholesale jeweler in Havre."

"His comparison was a little woman, very pleasant, but with no good looks to speak of. She did not take long to get acquainted with me, and she was not his wife, but the wife of his employer, with whom he had eloped from Havre."

"This we learned from the conversation we overheard at the table from day today. I am very sure Leroux had never seen Flamant before I introduced him in the dining-room the day after Flamant arrived here."

"The couple were introduced to me by a mutual friend of the French."

"From what I put together and what Mr. Bloch told me, I am convinced that the jewels were stolen from the woman's husband and brought to this country by Flamant and his wife."

BOOTH ABOUT THE SAME.

Miss Simonson Believed to Have Leaped from a Window.

There is every reason to believe that Miss Ellen Simonson, a trained nurse, thirty years old, committed suicide this morning by throwing herself out of the fifth story rear window of the Scotia hotel at 245 West One Hundred and Twentieth street.

Miss Simonson, who lived with her brother Charles, an oyster dealer, at 441 West Twenty-fourth street, was employed a week ago by Mr. Robert S. Davidson, who lives on the top floor of the Scotia hotel.

Mrs. Davidson is now dangerously ill, and her condition, it is said, worried the nurse and led her to take her life.

This morning about 6 o'clock Robert Davidson, the janitor, discovered the body lying at the bottom of the air-shaft.

The woman's head was crushed and her bones broken. She wore a wrapper, and was in her stocking feet.

Policeman Scheller, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, investigated the case.

DR. PARKHURST AGAIN.
He Is Going on the Warpath After Police Scap.

Takes Up the Kievents' Case as a Starter.

Believes They Are the Victims of Official Persecution.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst may be expected within a few days to again go on the warpath after police scap.

The occasion for another crusade arises out of the case of Philip Kievent and his wife, Rebecca, who were convicted of robbery in General Sessions Court March 15, and who were to be sentenced to-day by Judge Cowen.

Owing to newly found evidence the sentence has been deferred until next Wednesday, when, it is understood, an attempt will be made to secure a new trial.

It is a most remarkable case, and unless the newly found evidence is rank perjury, Dr. Parkhurst considers that the conviction of the Kievents is one of the most flagrant cases of police persecution on record.

This is the story as told by the witnesses for the prosecution: Kievent was a saloon-keeper at 86 Suffolk street. Feb. 24 last two poles entered the saloon and drank considerably.

Kievent invited one of them into the basement on the pretext of introducing him to a handsome young woman. The pole, John Phillips, went into the basement with Kievent, where the latter threw him upon a bed and throttled him, while Kievent's wife ransacked his pockets, taking a small purse containing $20.

They then released Phillips, who went upstairs where he and his friend, Michael Roginsky, who had been waiting for him, were thrown into the street and the empty purse flung after them.

Assistant District-Attorney Townsend conducted the prosecution. Lawyer Abraham D. Levy, of Joseph & Levy, 273 Broadway, and Ambrose H. Purdy, of the law firm of Purdy & McManus, 116 Centre street, defended the Kievents.
